ABOUT BUSINESS WEEK

Business Week is a week-long series of engaging and authentic professional development opportunities for students of all ages. It encourages personal interaction between students, alumni, potential employers, and industry leaders. Through this, students foster soft skills that are essential for success in the professional world.

This week-long series of interactive events include discussions of leadership, business etiquette, effective networking, goal setting, communication, and career management by Illinois State University alumni.

CLOSING EVENT SHE KILLS MONSTERS

Caterpillar Auditorium | State Farm Hall of Business 1:30pm - 2:15pm

To end the conference and culminate a day of discussion, cast members from the Illinois State University production of She Kills Monsters will perform a 30-minute scene from the play.

Through a metaphor, Agnes Evans gets to explore the Dungeons & Dragons world that her sister created to find the empowerment that she was denied in high school. All students are welcome to join us in watching as Agnes battles the monsters that represent the real monsters that her younger sister, Tilly, battled when she was alive: bigotry, bullying, gender & sexual orientation discrimination, fear, indifference, and intolerance.

FALL EVENTS

GOLF OUTING | September/October 2017

From job interviews to client pitches, the game of golf can be a great way to secure that dream job or land that huge sale. Golf in a professional setting isn't so much about hitting your drive down the middle of the fairway, but rather knowing the ins and outs of proper etiquette on the course.

At the Business Week Golf Outing, students participate in a clinic taught by Stacey Miller, Assistant PGA Professional. At the clinic, students have the opportunity to take some swings at the driving range, chip and putt at the putting green, and learn from Stacey about different rules and etiquette guidelines before they hit the course. At the golf outing, three students are paired with a business professional for a 4-man scramble. Students are able to take their lessons into action and also get some valuable networking opportunity with various professionals.

CORPORATE SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY CASE COMPETITION | November 2017

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) is the initiative to embrace responsibility for a company's actions and encourage a positive impact on societly through activities involving consumers, employees, communities, stakeholders, and the environment. CSR goes beyond what is required by regulators and promotes the betterment of business practices for sustained positive change for consumers, employees, communities, and stakeholders.

This year, Business Week's Corporate Social Responsibility Day was sponsored by COUNTRY Financial. The 2017 Business Week Case Competition was a unique opportunity for students to apply their research, analytical, and presentation skills. Teams of three to five students developed a solution to a real-life business problem within a three-hour time frame and then presented to a panel of judges. Following the first round, the competition was narrowed to three teams that presented once again to a larger panel of judges in competition for a prize of $3,000 split between the top teams. Attendees also had the opportunity to listen to featured guest speaker Noel Lucero, Development Director at Habitat for Humanity of McLean County.
